

Steel Seizure Hearing Starts

High Court Will Judge Legality

Washington, May 10—(AP)—The steel industry and the government squared off today in the great constitutional battle over President Truman's seizure of the nation's eight billion dollar steel industry to prevent a strike.

The two antagonists formally presented the supreme court with thick legal briefs bristling with arguments each side hoped will convince the nine high court justices.

The CIO steelworkers, all but lost in the court battle but with a vital interest in the outcome, gave the court their version of the legal issue: That their futile wage talks with the industry were a "sham"; that the real fight is over how much of a price increase the government would grant the industry to offset higher pay.

The industry contended seizure was "wholly illegal and wholly unconstitutional." Its brief, signed by John W. Davis and other attorneys for the nation's major steel companies, said the government was at "bitter war" with the industry; that it was trying to settle a labor dispute by "executive fiat"; and that it bypassed a specific law—the Taft-Hartley act—which congress had intended for deadlocked labor disputes.

The nub of the argument made by the Justice Department for the administration is this: The President "brought to solution of the emergency the sum of his powers" and that these powers, set forth in the constitution, are a "grant of all the executive powers of which the government is capable."

The constitution, the department brief said, contains "ample authority to sustain the President's action," despite the lack of a specific seizure law.

The President seized the steel mills the night of April 8, shortly before a scheduled strike by 650,000 steelworkers. On April 29, Judge David A. Pine of federal district court ruled the seizure "illegal and without authority of law." On May 3, the supreme court postponed the effect of Pine's order until it settles the question. It also banned the government from raising wages in the interim.

The Justice Department, legal arm of the President, wants the high court to overrule Judge Pine's decision. The industry has asked the court to uphold it and order the mills returned to their private owners.

Oral arguments expanding on the printed briefs are scheduled for Monday afternoon.

Contract Confabs Stall Settlement In Oil Strike

Denver, May 10—(AP)—Labor contract negotiations were stalled today in the 11-day-old strike of oil workers that has pinched air traffic and brought a government order conserving motor gasoline in two-thirds of the nation.

Efforts to reach local settlements that would send 90,000 strikers back to refineries and other oil facilities have been suspended until a meeting of union and industry representatives in Washington Tuesday.

They were summoned by the Wage Stabilization Board for a hearing on the union demands for 25 cents an hour wage increase. Union leaders have indicated they would settle for 18 cents an hour more. The present pay is $2-21.10 an hour.

The Petroleum Administration for Defense put into effect at 3:01 a. m. today an order to conserve dwindling motor fuel in 32 eastern and midwestern states and the District of Columbia.

The order was not expected to have any immediate effect on the average motorist. PAD officials said filling stations usually try to keep their stocks well above five per cent of their storage capacity.

DOCTORS AND NURSES IN MENTAL HOSPITALS GET PAY RAISE

Springfield, Ill., May 10—(AP)—Higher starting salary schedules were announced today for psychiatrists, nurses and practical nurses hired by Illinois state mental hospitals.

Fred K. Hoehler, state welfare director, said the step up in pay represents an effort to attract applicants for understaffed positions.

The new starting salaries per month will be $450 for physicians, up $90; $250 for nurses, up $39; $500 for psychiatrists and tuberculosis control physicians, up $60; and $176 for practical nurses, a $16 increase.

Taft Leads Eisenhower In Votes

By The Associated Press
Senator Robert A. Taft picked up delegate strength in three states yesterday, (Saturday), and General Dwight Eisenhower got added backers in two, as the battle to win the Republican presidential nomination continued.

Taft won 11 votes. He got seven in Nevada, two in Missouri, and two in Virginia in Republican party conventions. That brought his total number of delegates in the Associated Press tally to 343. Taft forces claim over 400. The Eisenhower count reached 290 with the addition of 4 votes, two in Missouri, and two in Nevada.

The AP tally is based on delegates pledged, instructed, favorable, or willing to state a first ballot choice, and candidate concessions. On this basis nine delegate votes were listed as unknown, uncommitted, or in dispute after the convention voting yesterday.

A total of 86 delegates both Republican and Democrat, were being named yesterday. To these will be added 158 to be chosen during the week ahead as seven states and Hawaii select their representatives for the July 7 party convalescence.

By the time all these have been chosen, Republicans will be near the three-fourths mark in the selection of convention delegates, and the Democrats will be closer to the two-thirds mark.

The Oregon primary Friday is considered one of the week's top political events. In addition Wyoming, Rhode Island, North Dakota, Vermont and Hawaii make important contributions to the treasure chest of coveted convention votes.

These are the figures—the cold statistics—that could begin crowd-out activities of the candidates themselves in interest:

Republicans have 1206 delegates to the national convention in Chicago July 7. A winning candidate needs 604 to be nominated. Through today (Sunday) the GOP primaries and conventions have named 815, by the end of the week ahead will have named 895. Up to yesterday, an Associated Press survey based on delegates pledged, instructed, favorable or willing to state a first vote choice gave Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio 332, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower 286. Taft could increase his lead substantially this week.

Remark In Court Brings Seizure Of Rock Island Slots

Rock Island, Ill., May 10—(AP)—An offhand remark in a court room led to seizure of eight slot machines at the Rock Island Eagles lodge.

The legal double play went like this yesterday:

Three members of the lodge, Charles Stauduhar, Victor Laden and Robert Nelson, appeared in police court on charges of disturbing the peace. The charges were brought by the lodge.

Stauduhar gave this version of the incident: the three men were leaving the lodge. One slipped and pushed against Stauduhar, who fell against a railing. The railing was broken. Stauduhar sent a carpenter, who repaired it.

The defendants were informed that they might be fined $100 each. One of them blurted:

"I'll pay $100 if the lodge pays $100 for every slot machine it has in the place."

Assistant State's Attorney Richard McCarthy, who heard the hot words, obtained a search warrant. Police, armed with the warrant, raided the lodge hall and seized eight slot machines.

The officers said the machines had jackpots in them and apparently had not been used recently.

Predict HST Will Veto House-Passed Fair Trade Bill

Washington, May 10—(AP)—A presidential veto was predicted today for a House-passed fair trade bill which, opponents claim, would cause widespread price increases and extort billions annually from American consumers.

The bill, passed Thursday by a 196 to 10 standing vote in the House, may never reach President Truman, for the Senate commerce committee has indicated disfavor.

Those against the measure are fearful it may be added in the Senate to a major appropriation bill, thereby circumventing the commerce committee and making it more difficult for the president to veto.

In effect, the bill gives federal sanction to the fair trade laws of 45 states which permit price fixing on popular brand-name articles.

Russians Halt Allied Patrols On Autobahn

Berlin, May 10—(AP)—The Western Allies were back in a familiar position tonight: Wondering what the Russians would do next.

Booted Russian border guards refused today to let Allied military patrols enter the Berlin-Helmstedt autobahn from the eastern end. They gave no reason, although the patrols along the single highway linking Berlin and the west across the Soviet zone are daily routine.

U. S. British and French commandants said they had "called Gen. Vasily I. Chulikov's attention to the matter." Chulikov is commander of Russian forces in Germany.

Some Allied officials admitted frankly they were bewildered by the abrupt move, which came on the eve of the third anniversary of the end of the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

Others termed it just another stitch in the needling process the Russians often give the West in Berlin.

But all seemed determined to avoid stress on the incident.

For a time Russian guards refused to let patrols enter from the Helmstedt end of the 110-mile stretch. Later they permitted Helmstedt patrol cars to enter. This added to Allied confusion.

A brief Allied statement said that first difficulties about the patrol cars arose Thursday, but added it was believed the affair was due to a misunderstanding.

An American patrol soldier said a Russian sentry ordered his patrol back this morning after a cursory examination of documents.

He said the sentry at the Babelsberg checkpoint—outlet from Berlin—"didn't act tough," but neither did he offer any explanation.

Halt of the patrol cars did not affect regular truck and passenger car traffic over the Berlin-Helmstedt highway.

Ridgway Exhorts Men In Farewell Message

Tokyo, Sunday, May 11—(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, the soft-spoken paratrooper who steered Allied forces to fight back from their greatest defeat in Korea, leaves tomorrow for his new job as supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe.

Ridgway, who closed out the Allied occupation of Japan begun by his official duties yesterday by lunching with the Emperor, exhorted his troops in a farewell message and expressing typical reservations about the prospects of a Korean truce at a final news conference.

"Never before in history have the responsibilities of an armed force been heavier or more varied," Ridgway told his troops. "Never before have these responsibilities been more fully or faithfully met."

"You have had my utmost," he said. "I feel I have had yours. I carry with me abiding faith in you, and abiding admiration for your achievements."

"May God grant you success in the great cause of freedom in which you serve."

He declined to predict at the news conference whether a Korean truce could be achieved.

Gen. Mark Clark succeeds Ridgway as United Nations and U. S. Far East commander.

Ridgway will replace Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who resigned to become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

State Fair Offers $428,933 Premiums, Largest In Nation

Springfield, Ill., May 10—(AP)—The 1952 Illinois state fair Aug. 8-17 will offer $428,933 in premiums, the management announced today.

General Manager H. W. Elliott said the sum is the largest distributed at any similar event in the nation, and exceeds last year's awards by about $80,000.

Of the total, the fair itself will contribute $234,971. The remaining $194,022 will be put up by agricultural associations interested in various competitions.

Elliott said most of the increase over 1951 is due to a new harness racing feature—the Illinois State Fair Colt Stakes.

TO FILM SOUTH SEA ISLAND

Hollywood, May 12—(AP)—Movie maker Mark Robson is heading for the south seas to film a real-life island epic—or as real-life as the censors will allow.

Director Robson is the kingpin of Hollywood's first major invasion of the South Seas in decades. His aspen productions will film one of the James Michener stories from "Return to Paradise" on the island of Upolu in Western Samoa. A cast and crew headed by Gary Cooper is being exported from here for the project.

Robson scouted over a large portion of polynesia before finding the locale he felt was suitable. One of his main problems now will be to keep his picture suitable for censorship tastes.

Naval Maneuvers Cause Hobson-Wasp Tragedy

Bayonne, N. J., May 10—(AP)—The senior surviving officer of the destroyer-mine sweeper Hobson testified today that the vessel's skipper made a dangerous turn which resulted in the collision of the Hobson and aircraft carrier Wasp.

The 27-year-old officer, Lieut. William O. Hoefler, said he was on deck when Lt. Cmdr. William J. Tierney ordered "standard left rudder."

Kefauver Wins More Delegates

By The Associated Press
Democrats have 1280 delegates to the national convention in Chicago July 21. A winning candidate needs 616 to win. Through today 633 have been named by week's end the total will be 711. The AP survey up to yesterday gives Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee 1064, W. Averell Harriman 934, and Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia 43.

Early returns from yesterday's developments showed:

Nevada—Sen. Russell appeared the likely first choice of the state's 10 Democratic delegate votes selected at the Wells convention, although the delegation will be uncommitted. Taft apparently will have the support of the top-heavy bulk of the GOP's 12 votes named at a Tonopah convention. An AP poll showed seven for Taft, two for Eisenhower, and three refusing to state choices. Of these three, two are known to lean toward Taft.

Michigan—The Democratic party settled on Gov. G. Mennen Williams as a favorite son candidate who could influence the swinging of the 40 convention votes, particularly the 10 or 12 delegate-at-large group.

Utah—Democrats were expected to follow precedent at the state organization convention and select an uncommitted 12-vote delegation. Kefauver was in Salt Lake City campaigning, expressed confidence of victory at Chicago.

Missouri—Gave two delegates to Taft, two to Eisenhower, and four more were listed as uncommitted or not committed, in the course of four GOP conventions.

Virginia—Four more of the state's 23 GOP delegates were selected. Two went to Taft, and two were reported leaning toward Eisenhower. Six delegates already had been committed and uncommitted.

Oregon's Friday primary will find six Republican names before the voters—Eisenhower, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Harold Stassen of Minnesota, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and William R. Schneider of St. Louis, former Missouri state representative. Taft backers hope to pick up some of the state's 18 delegates, although his name is not listed. Warren, Stassen and Eisenhower backers have been campaigning actively. There was little activity among the Democrats. But Kefauver is due Tuesday for a three-day campaign. He is opposed to the ballot by Associate Justice William O. Douglas, and Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, both of whom say they are not candidates.

S. Dakotan Predicts Ike Will Wage Real Campaign

Aberdeen, S.D., May 10—(AP)—Former Governor George T. Mickelson tonight said he was certain no one would wage a more vigorous campaign for president than the man he had just visited—Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Fresh from a Paris conference with the general, Mickelson quoted Eisenhower as saying, "If anybody thinks there won't be a fighting campaign they'll have another thing coming."

The South Dakotan said he could tell Eisenhower was sincere "by the way he squared his shoulders and firmness his determined German jaw."

He quoted Eisenhower as saying, "I've been a Republican all my life, my parents were Republicans, and I'll have a free hand in meeting the clean-up campaign."

Result of Research May Mean Less Noise In Factories

Springfield, Ill., May 10—(AP)—A search is going to be made for ways of deadening or eliminating some of the obnoxious noises in factories, the state labor department said today.

The effect of industrial noise on the hearing of workers will be analyzed as part of the project.

The study, lasting possibly two years, was announced today by Labor Director Fern R. Rauch.

It will be carried out with the cooperation of 13 large industries and a casualty insurance company. Experts from throughout the country will be called in. They will concentrate on sounds of unusual intensity or quality, Rauch said.

He said he believed the study will be the first of its kind to be launched by a governmental agency.

der," a "dangerous maneuver." Had he been in command, young Hoefler added, he would not have issued the order.

The maneuver brought the tiny Hobson under the prow of the huge aircraft carrier. The Hobson was split in half in the collision and sank in four minutes, killing Tierney and 175 crew members.

Hoefler gave his sworn statement at the second day of hearing before a navy court of inquiry in the naval shipyard annex here.

The lieutenant, one of 61 survivors of the sea disaster, said the Wasp had signaled that it was making a right turn. Instead of making a slow right turn, Lieut. Hoefler said, Cmdr. Tierney turned right and then ordered two successive left turns. This maneuver, Hoefler added, placed the Hobson right in the path of the oncoming Wasp.

"I warned that the ranges were closing too fast," Lieut. Hoefler said, but "the (Tierney) did not say anything."

He testified that Cmdr. Tierney had been taking visual bearing all along and "I assumed that he knew what the bearing was."

The young officer said he thought Tierney's action had been influenced by a dispatch from Rear Admiral Chester C. Wood, commander of Destroyer Flotilla 4, Atlantic Fleet, which urged destroyer commanders to perform maneuvers "in the most expeditious manner."

The dispatch said, "prompt and resolute action, even at the expense of an occasional mistake is a hallmark of good destroyer outfits. Let us have more of it." Lieut. Cmdr. N. R. Leigh 3rd, counsel for the court, asked Hoefler whether he thought the dispatch "might have affected the attitude" of Cmdr. Tierney.

Hoefler said he thought the dispatch caused Tierney to maneuver his ship "so as to get on station expeditiously as possible."

Asked why he hadn't objected more strenuously to the order, Hoefler replied:

"Well, sir, on paper it worked out all right. It would have put us on station. I made a suggestion and while I thought it was good, when I saw he wasn't agreeable I didn't see any sense in arguing about it."

Frankfurter, Dewey, Acheson Confer At Capital

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Secretary of State Acheson, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter conferred tonight in a Washington hotel.

There was evidence that Acheson was giving to Dewey, a supporter of the candidacy of Gen. D. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination, a detailed fill-in of American foreign policy, with Frankfurter sitting in on the conference.

Although Acheson is for president, the Democratic nominee for president, the secretary of state apparently was taking cognizance of the fact that a Republican might be elected.

Dewey, although backing Gen. Eisenhower for the nomination, has indicated that he will not accept any cabinet post if Eisenhower is elected. Nevertheless, indications are that Dewey might become Eisenhower's potential secretary of state if the general wins the GOP nomination at the Chicago convention.

In the three cornered conference, Acheson was said to have insisted that the Republican nominee should support without reservations the Democratic program for aid to Europe.

Study Campbell's Hidden Fee Role In U. S. Grain Deal

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Senate investigators said today the Justice department's criminal division is scrutinizing the role of Alex Campbell, its former chief, in a deal involving hidden fees to a former agriculture department official convicted recently of illegally taking money in another case.

The senate agriculture committee, conducting the inquiry said both Campbell and the discharged agriculture department official, Jack I. Cowart, might testify.

Yesterday, Erwin Kelm, vice president of Cargill, Inc. of Minneapolis, defended deals his big grain firm made with the government.

The General Accounting Office has accused the Commodities Credit Corporation of showing favoritism in buying 11 million bushels of wheat from Cargill in 1949 at current cash prices. It said half a million dollars could have been saved since the wheat was not needed until months later and by then the cash price had dropped.

R. R. Unions Gain Supreme Court Hearing

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Three big railroad unions today won the right to tell the Supreme Court how issues in the steel industry seizure case affect President Truman's 1950 seizure of the railroads.

The high tribunal in an unsigned order late in the day granted union attorneys an hour to present arguments, after the justices hear five hours of legal debate in the steel case.

This means that the justices likely will spend Monday and Tuesday afternoons, at least, listening to arguments on the president's disputed authority to seize private industry.

The railroad unions, in an appeal filed with the Supreme Court today, assailed presidential seizure of the railroads and the steel industry. They asked the court to grant a hearing on their appeal and then to take these things:

1. Declare unconstitutional the 1950 railroad seizure, accomplished under a World War I law applicable only to transportation systems and not under the claimed inherent powers which Truman invoked in the steel seizure.

2. Invalidate a lower court's order forbidding the unions to strike while the railroads are being operated by the government.

Witness Beaten In Graft Case Of N. Y. Police

New York, May 10—(AP)—An undertone of terror appeared in the graft case of five policemen today with an ugly telephoned threat to the prosecutor and the beating up of his star witness's brother.

Victor J. Herwitz, assistant city corporation counsel, said he received the anonymous call at his home this morning.

Only hours before, Jackie Gross, 34, said he was beaten up on a dark street by two men as a warning to his brother, Bookie Harry Gross, to stop testifying about graft payments to police.

A police guard was assigned immediately to Herwitz and his family and to young Gross, who is single.

The ominous developments recalled the slaying last March of Arnold Schuster, 24, Brooklyn pants presser, about two weeks after his tip enabled police to arrest bank robber Willie (The Actor) Sutton.

Gross electrified the departmental trial of the five policemen this week by declaring the city's three highest ranking police officials, since retired, were on his payroll to protect his 20 million dollar a year bookie racket.

Gross, seeking a reduction in a 12-year bookmaking sentence, also named 100 lesser-ranked policemen as having taken "kick"—or graft—from him. He told, too, of having access to police records and of having his own record removed.

Report Americans Save More Money Despite Inflation

Washington, May 10—(AP)—Americans as individuals are saving more and more money despite inflation and heavy consumer buying, the National Savings and Loan league reported today.

It said money invested in the major types of savings agencies increased 24 per cent from 1946 to the end of 1951.

At the start of this year, the league reported, individuals had 180 billion dollars invested. This is apart from commercial investments.

The biggest increase in savings over the five-year period was 86.1 per cent by Savings and Loans associations. With a total of $16,079,000,000 invested at the start of 1952, this type of agency rated fifth in total of money.

Life insurance companies, second in increase at 40 per cent, had the most money invested—$7 billion dollars.

RAID MONEY GOES TO SCHOOL

Edwards County, Ill., May 10—(AP)—Madison County Judge Michael Kinney ruled today that $5,936 seized in a state police gambling raid should go to county schools.

Illinois state police raided the 200 Club in nearby Madison May 12 1950.

Judge Kinney ordered the equipment seized in the raid to be destroyed by the sheriff May 22 in the court's presence.

An appeal from Judge Kinney's earlier order confiscating the money and property recently was denied by the appellate court.

GRIDIRONERS MEET, FUN AS USUAL—TRUMAN ABSENT

Washington, May 10—(AP)—The GOP victory special got stuck in a snowdrift tonight and the Democrat wagon broke down in the wilds of Independence, Mo.

Pirates cruised the Potomac. Apes ran wild on the capitol lawn.

Nothing was sacred, in fact, as the Gridiron club, 67-year-old organization of Washington correspondents, held its first spring dinner since the Korean war began, and roasted to a fare-thee-well the biggest names in American politics.

Most leading candidates for president arranged to be on hand, or to be represented, for a series of elaborately staged skits lampooning the Truman administration and its Republican opposition alike before an audience of 500.

President Truman stayed away. He hasn't been attending affairs of this kind since the Korean crisis broke. Vice-President Barkley and former President Herbert Hoover were the off-the-record speakers at the dinner, held in the Statler hotel.

I.C.C. Asks Ruling On Rate Increase By Telephone Co.

Chicago, May 10—(AP)—The Illinois Commerce Commission said today it will ask the state supreme court to rule on the legality of a telephone rate increase by the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

An ICC spokesman said a circuit court justice has agreed to hear an appeal Monday which seeks to prohibit the company from collecting the higher rates until the commission can take the case to the state supreme court.

The new phone rates calling for increases ranging from 50 cents to $2 a month became effective Thursday after Circuit Judge Charles A. O'Connor ruled that the commission's denial of the company's rate request was unreasonable and unlawful.

Under the new rates single party line charges will be increased from $5.10 a month to $5.85; two party lines from $4.10 to $4.60; and individual business lines from $7 to $8.50.

A Bell spokesman, using Springfield as an average downstate city, said single party subscribers there now would be charged $5.35; two party, $4.70; rural lines, $3.85; and single business lines, $11.75.

Bell said telephone bill could not reflect the new rates before next Monday or Tuesday.

Tito Accuses Italy Of Warmongering On Yugoslav Land

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 10—(AP)—Premier Marshal Tito declared today Yugoslavia will not recognize the British-American agreement giving Italy fuller powers in administering Trieste's zone A. He accused Italy's "ruling clique" of war mongering designs on Yugoslav territory.

Tito told some 120,000 cheering Yugoslavs in the town of Karpinia that the agreements reached at the three-power conference in London yesterday would not be acceptable to his Communist regime. He said because Yugoslavia was not represented at the conference.

Tito's fiery 90-minute speech marked the 10th anniversary of the Yugoslav uprising against Nazi invaders.

Yugoslavs cheered wildly as Tito charged Premier Alcide de Gasperi's regime with playing politics on the question of strategic Trieste. Italy is to have local elections May 25, in which Communists, middle-grounders and right

SOMETHING DOING ALL THE TIME!

Many Central Illinoisans are looking forward to vacation trips to other states this summer, but those who remain within the boundaries of their home state need not be bored. They can take their pick of festivals, pageants, centennials, Soap Box Derbies, and other unique types of community celebrations.

A special events calendar released by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce lists 64 important community events which will collectively attract and entertain many hundreds of thousands. Tourists will come from other sections to view some of these attractions.

Illinois communities have planned events ranging from a Pancake Festival in Nauvoo to an annual Pet Parade in LaGrange; from the Hiawatha Pageant in Elgin to an Ox-Roast Festival in Skokie.

Centennial celebrations will be held in Virden, Rockford, Woodstock and LaSalle. Quite frequently a bewhiskered visitor is noticed on Jacksonville streets. "He's from Virden—they're going to have a centennial celebration there," has become a stock explanation when a fuzzy individual goes by.

Young folks are looking forward to a Fireman's Kids Day in Havana, an Indian Pow-Wow in Rock Island and a Farm Youth Day in Peoria. Lombard will have its Lilac Festival. Mendota its Sweet Corn Festival, Momence its annual Gladiolus Festival.

Jacksonville has its share of special attractions which will interest thousands of all ages. Some of these do not appear on the Illinois C. of C. schedule, but nevertheless hold appeal for many persons.

Illini Girls State here June 24-July 2 will bring together more than 400 girls for study of citizenship, along with many counselors and parents.

The annual Soap Box Derby on Sunday, July 13, will line the course solidly with spectators of all ages. The Derby, under sponsorship of the Journal Courier, Corn Belt Chevrolet Co., and Exchange Club, has for a number of years been one of the largest recreational events in downstate Illinois. The winner and his parents will receive an all-expense trip to Akron, Ohio, where the Jacksonville area champ will take part in the national finals.

A bit later in the summer, July 28-30 inclusive, Morgan county young people and adults will find interest in the Morgan County Fair, offering many attractions. Stock car racing is a weekly drawing card at the modernized fair grounds.

The Illinois State Softball Tournament is scheduled for this city in August, another big spot on the Jacksonville calendar.

Illinoisans may be excused for sneaking across state lines for a quick look at some other part of the country this summer—that is, if they promise to hurry back!

ONE DAY FOR MOTHERS

Americans are happy and proud to dedicate one day in the year to the honor and memory of mother. It is due in no small measure to her unswerving faith in her children, her mighty courage, her inexhaustible fortitude, patience and indomitable spirit that this country has been forged into a powerful republic in which the human being is the most free in all history.

To the overwhelmingly majority, Mother's Day signifies far more than the abundant showering on her of worldly gifts and possessions in some small token of appreciation. It symbolizes the affection and esteem which is accorded motherhood and womanhood in this country, where the influence and touch of the gentle sex has been so pronounced and widespread.

Mother's Day, for the millions everywhere who have reserved this one day for their mothers, is not simply the occasion for the tendering of a gift to her in remembrance, but a time to extend to this gracious lady the utmost in love, affection, loyalty and devotion.

BIRD WATCHERS SWARM IN BRICK CANYON OASIS

BY JOE WING
(For Hal Boyle)

New York—(AP)—The hunting season is on in Central Park.

This morning and every morning during the annual bird migration time, scores of enthusiasts, armed with binoculars and identification books, prowl the glades of the 862-acre, $800,000,000 bird sanctuary to add new species to their annual lists.

The hunting thus far hasn't been very good. The migration has been late. The big wave of warblers, due May 10, may not be along for several days.

The bird watchers form a kind of fraternity. They concentrate in the ramble, a brushy area near the American Museum of Natural History, and exchange the password, "see anything good?" As they meet from time to time.

One woman who answered "yes, a Cape May Warbler, down that way," was nearly trampled in the rush before she got the words out of her mouth. Cape May Warblers are uncommon and not to be missed.

THOUGHTS

And if thy brother be not nigh unto thee, or if thou know him not, then thou shalt bring it unto thine own house, and it shall be with thee until thy brother seek after it, and thou shalt restore it to him again.—Deut. 22:2.

Such help as we can give to each other in this world is a debt to each other; and the man who perceives a superiority or a capacity in a subordinate, and neither confesses nor assists it, is not merely the withholder of kindness, but the committer of injury.—Ruskin.

People not in the know think the watchers a little crazy, one of them confessed. An officer once thought of running a watcher in as a peeping tom.

In the last half century, more than 225 species of birds have been observed in the park, including 38 different kinds of Warblers, a Dickcissel from the West and a Snowy Owl from the Far North, a Purple Gallinule from the South.

The nice thing about the park, from a bird watchers' viewpoint, is that birds seen there are all on the move. They drop in at night as at an oasis in a brick wilderness, but find next day it is no place to settle down.

We've never yet heard of a train being knocked off the track by the annual spring drive against them by autos.

Hollywood—(NEA)—Behind the Screen: Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, battling with Producer Hal Wallis for better film stories, are putting the "Career Crisis" label on the fight. Another flimsy plot like "Sailor Beware," they're arguing, will send their box-office rating into a permanent slump.

There's been big talk of Rhonda Fleming hitting the night-club trail as a warbler but Rhonda herself says: "I won't accept any night club engagements until they are no more movies for me to do."

Before Gigi Perreau leaps into TV she'll hop to London to star in "Sara Crewe" with an all-British cast. The Frances Hodgson Burnett classic was dramatized on "Studio One" a few months ago.

Claire Trevor's telling it on herself. A neighbor lad, visiting her home, spotted her Oscar on a shelf and asked her seven-year-old son Charles about it. "Oh," said Charles, "that's just Mama's monument."

Margaret Sullivan, who hasn't made a movie since "No Sad Songs for Me," is being wooed to return to Hollywood for Fidelity Pictures' "The Gardenia." Vera Caspary's suspense tale about a telephone operator.

UI has signed Robert Monnet, the singer—a tipoff to the musical cycle that the studio is about to launch. Geraldine Brooks says it's a legal battle between investors, not censorship, that's keeping "Volcano," the controversial Italian movie she made out of the U. S. American and Italian money men are deadlocked over who gets what out of the profits.

TEEN-AGE LAMOUR

Daria Massey will play Dorothy Lamour as a South Sea Island teen-ager in "The Road to Bali." Shades of Bette Davis. The part that Orson Welles plays in "Trent's Last Case"—Michael Wilding and Margaret Lockwood are the stars—last exactly 15 minutes on the screen.

Lynn Gilmore, after watching a Hollywood actor down enough fire-water for a lost week-end quipped: "The man obviously has a Scotch tapeworm."

Now Marilyn Buford, the former Miss America, may become a French movie queen. She's co-starring in a picture in Paris and sporting French all over the place.

Hollywoodites may scream about the horrors of live TV, but there's a "No Temperament" report on the movie kiddies from Director Joe Santley of the Jimmy Durante show. Durante's guests this season have included many of the movie greats and this is Santley's report:

"They worry about blowing lines, but there were no fireworks from any of them. All of them acted like kids with a new toy."

Jimmy's only bad memory of his guest stars was Joe Ferrer's refusal to do the show after being booked. "He didn't like the script, or something," Jimmy dismisses it. "It was a big mess."

COMMUNISM TAKES COUNT

There's another punch at communism coming up at UI under the title, "Ivan's Left Hand." It's a satire about a Russian M. P. who's imported to fight as a professional boxer in the U. S. The fun begins when the lad with the Red Doctrine meets the American way of life head on and changes his viewpoint. Irving Hoffman's description of Johnnie Ray's New York night club debut: "A nervous breakdown in public." Ray's also being labeled "The Prince of Walls."

Friends vow it's true that Zsa Zsa Gabor decided she didn't like the beeper of a close Hungarian writer friend. So she presented him with a plastic surgery nose bob as a gift.

Dana Andrews' kid brother, Steve Forrest, just landed an acting contract at MGM. Harry Brian's set for a comeback via a telefilm, "The Doctor Prescribes."

Evelyn Keyes and mag photographer Bob Capa are an item in Paris. Mary Pickford's shedding 20 pounds for her movie comeback in "The Library." James Cagney's back in town from his Martha's Vineyard farm. His next film will be "A Lion Is in the Streets."

Basil Rathbone is planning a movie comeback via a new agent. He's been clicking on TV but hasn't made a big-screen movie in years. Lucille Knoch, the blonde in Red Skelton's TV role, will play the role of Gilbert Roland's girl friend in MGM's "Tribute to a Bad Man."

It's hard to tell if some of the men in the employment offices are looking for work or just a profitable way of spending their leisure.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

What Has Happened to Sunday?

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

One who grew up, as probably many of my readers did, in an environment of strict observance of Sunday as a special day of religion for the religious, and a day of rest for all, may well ask, "What has happened to Sunday?"

Listen late Sunday night to the news of the day on one of the leading networks. I am impressed with the increasing amount of radio news given over to the reporting of baseball, football, basketball and hockey scores.

I speak without prejudice against sports as such. I once captained a winning football team. But I cite the matter of Sunday sport as a striking example of what has happened to the day. So far as I know, wrestling matches and prize fights are still taboo on Sundays; but there is no knowing for how long that may be.

In Canada, where I spent the first half of my life, the observance of Sunday was more general and much stricter than in the United States, which we realized was approaching what we called "the Continental Sunday."

There was no Sunday newspaper in Canada and so far as I know there is none today, a late Saturday evening paper taking its place. During the eleven years that I lived in "Toronto the Good" businesses of every kind were closed up tight.

Those who have grown up under present and prevailing Sunday conditions can have no conception of an old-fashioned Sunday. It is my own judgment that undue strictness has had much to do with the reaction that has gone so far the other way.

In my own experience Sunday was never a dull day. In families like my own the day was a religious day, and its observance as a day of rest was sincere and honest, with no subterfuge in behind-the-scenes labor.

But among others there was considerable insincerity and hypocrisy. When churchmen opposed the running of street cars on Sunday in Toronto, where I was living at the time, a real factor in deciding the issue was the opposition of wealthy members of downtown churches who could enjoy being driven to church by their coachmen.

The great extreme to which the non-observance of Sunday has gone in many communities is evident in the fact that Monday has become for many a day of listless reaction from the excessive activities of one kind or another the day before.

In contrast one recalls the strength and freshness with which most people used to come to their tasks on Monday morning from a Sunday well spent in worship and rest.

Socially, we probably cannot turn back the clock, but individuals would be wise to recover something of those values of Sunday, which our fathers knew and regret having lost.

Truman Invoked Taft-Hartley Law in Nine Labor Disputes

BY PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington—(NEA)—Recent pressure on President Truman to use the Taft-Hartley Labor-Management Relations Act to settle the steel dispute makes timely a review of the labor disputes handled under this law.

It went into effect in August 1947. White House records indicate that President Truman has invoked this law nine times. This has been to appoint boards of inquiry to report on disputes during 30-day cooling-off periods.

National Labor Relations Board records show that it has been called on in only five of those cases to conduct employee elections on acceptance or rejection of an employer's last offer.

An interesting sidelight here is that in nearly every one of these elections, the employees overwhelmingly rejected the employers' best offers, and settlement was made on a different basis.

The first case in which President Truman invoked the Taft-Hartley law involved the American Federation of Labor's Oak Ridge, Tenn., Council of Atomic Energy Commission employees working under the Union Carbide and Chemical Co. contract in March, 1948.

In this election, only 26 employees voted to accept the employer's last offer of a 10-cent-an-hour increase and 71 voted to reject it.

A strike was prevented by injunction from March 19, 1948, to June 11. But four days after the injunction was lifted, the union settled for a 15-cent-an-hour increase.

NLRB Not Called in Second Case. In the second big Taft-Hartley case, involving packing house workers, a presidential board was appointed to investigate, but no injunction was asked for and no NLRB election was held.

AFL union, settled early for a nine-cent-an-hour increase, settling the union ranks. CIO Packinghouse Workers demanded 29 cents an hour and struck Armour, Swift and Cudahy plants from March 17 to May 21, 1948. Wilson was struck till June 5. All were settled at a nine-cent-an-hour increase, the employers' first offer.

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers have tangle with the Taft-Hartley law three times. The first case in March, 1948, was over pensions. There was a presidential board inquiry and an injunction against a strike.

In the second case, in June, 1948, a board of inquiry was named but no injunction was sought. There was no strike and the case was settled before the old contract expired.

Wage Stabilization Board had to be called into this trouble to give final approval to a 15 cent an hour increase last December.

Then, after the Taft-Hartley procedure had run its course, the various maritime unions settled for wage increases of $5 to $35 a month with a reduction of overtime-on-over-time demands.

Since the Korean war began, the Taft-Hartley law has been invoked by President Truman only once. This was in the nonferrous metals industry strikes during the fall of 1951.

There was a board of inquiry and an injunction from Sept. 5 to Nov. 25. The key Kennecott Copper case was settled before the injunction took effect, others while it was in effect and still others after it ended.

EAT WELL for Less

Family Can Enjoy Baby Foods

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Food and Markets Editor

Last year the stork delivered over seven babies a minute, establishing a record. The prepared baby-food industry has been keeping in step with the steadily increasing baby crop each year. They now make over 50 strained and junior foods.

Many of these baby foods can be used in combination with baby and mother meals, or some for baby-family suppers. It's a good time and labor-saving idea. Here are a few nutritionally valuable recipes to prove the point:

Jellied Chicken Soup (Makes 2 servings)

One and one-half teaspoons plain gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 1 bouillon cube, 1 cup hot water, 1 can (4 ounces) strained chicken soup, 1 hard-cooked egg, sliced.

Add gelatin to cold water and allow to soak 5 minutes. Dissolve bouillon cube in hot water. Combine soaked gelatin and hot bouillon. Stir until completely dissolved.

Add strained chicken soup and mix thoroughly. Bring to a boil in cold water and add slices of hard-cooked egg in bottom. Pour in soup mixture. Chill until firm.

Savory Liver-Casserole (Makes 3-4 servings)

One can (3½ ounces) prepared frozen peaches, cookies, coffee, milk.

Combine liver, 1 cup quick-cooking rice, 1 cup tomato juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Combine ingredients in a saucepan. Bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 10 minutes or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Serve in a heated casserole.

Variation—Pan-broil 2 slices bacon until crisp. Crumble into small bits and add to liver-mix mixture.

Shortcut Pear Sherbet

One can (4½ ounces) strained peaches, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, 1 egg white, stiffly beaten.

Combine pear, lemon juice and confectioners

Woman's League Annual Meeting Monday Evening

The annual meeting of the Jacksonville League of Women Voters of Morgan county will be held Monday evening at 6:30 at the Congregational church. At this time the annual election will take place and plans for the company two year periods will be made.

Mrs. Ernest Hildner, delegate to the national convention held in Cincinnati, will give a report of the convention. Members are to take table service and a covered dish for the supper.

Mrs. Sherwood Eddy, president of the League of Women Voters of Morgan County, Mrs. Orville Foreman, national board member, Mrs. Hugh Beggs, Mrs. George Carpenter, and Mrs. Harris attended a regional conference on Constitutional Revision in the Illinois Union building at Urbana, Friday.

Mrs. Granger Brown, Lake Forest, chairman of the statewide constitutional revision committee of which Mrs. Beggs is a member, had charge of the program for the conference, and Mrs. Beggs spoke.

The first objective of the six such conferences to be held throughout the state is the making of plans for support of the proposed amendment to the revenue article of the Illinois constitution to be voted upon at the November election. Another goal, according to Mrs. Brown, is "to develop a consensus on whether the League will support, oppose, or suggest alternative when legislative proposals to revise the constitution in the fields of court reform, reapportionment, and home rule are offered in the next session of the General Assembly."

ADVERTISE-IT PAYS

Estonian D. P. Makes Good As Local Nurse

Americans may begin to wonder during the course of the coming political campaign whether they live in a democracy or whether this is a land of incipient dictatorship. But there are some newcomers to our beloved land who can assure you that the United States is still a land of freedom and opportunity, still a haven for the oppressed of less fortunate nations whose governments lack our philosophy of fundamental right to life, liberty and equality of opportunity for each individual.

After the Second World War many so-called Displaced Persons, men and women who were unable or unwilling to return to homes devastated by war or tyrannical governments, were admitted to the United States where they hoped to mend their broken lives in an atmosphere of freedom and opportunity.

One of them, Mrs. Agnes Egel Huivla, came to Lincoln, Ill., and subsequently to Jacksonville. She will tell you that the United States may take pride in the fact that it still holds to the traditions upon which it was founded.

A few days ago Mrs. Huivla, who is a nurse at Passavant hospital, traveled to Chicago and successfully passed the state examinations given to candidates for registered nurse. It was the culmination of an ambition she first conceived for herself in her native Estonia more than ten years ago. In fact, before the storm of war broke over her country, Mrs. Huivla had received advanced nurse training at Tartu, Estonia.

But Mrs. Huivla's goal was long delayed and did not come to fruition until she came to this country because Estonia was engulfed in three invasions and came under the yoke of two alien dictatorships. First, in 1941, by the use of rigid plebiscites and formidable pressure, Soviet Russia occupied the little country on the Baltic. In 1943, the advancing German Wehrmacht took over the unhappy land and established its own brand of tyranny. Personal ambitions, freedoms and lives were snuffed out.

Flee From Russians
In 1944, as the might of the German war machine receded, the Russians came back to Estonia and the country disappeared behind the iron curtain, where it still remains. But Mrs. Huivla and her husband, together with their child, Eva, preferred to take their chances with the retreating Germans, hoping thereby to come into contact with liberating forces from America and Great Britain, advancing from the west. More than 40,000 Estonians, nearly ten percent of the population, preferred this course to a renewed existence under Communist rule.

Mrs. Huivla was drafted into the Wehrmacht near the end of the war and his wife has heard no word from him since.

She and her daughter, however, found themselves in a Displaced Persons' camp in Western Germany after V-E Day. These camps were established by the Allies for thousands of persons like Mrs. Huivla, persons who did not want to return to their homes, now under the iron heel of Soviet Russia.

For four years, until 1949, Mrs. Huivla remained in DP camps, the last being at Stuttgart, Germany. In that year, through the auspices of the National Lutheran Council and the generosity of a couple in Lincoln, Ill., she came to Lincoln and took a job as a nurse's aide in the Deaconess hospital.

Comes to Jacksonville

In December, 1951, Mrs. Huivla and her daughter, Eva, came to Jacksonville where the mother at long last resumed her work towards the coveted position of registered nurse. Last week she achieved her goal. As a registered nurse she becomes a member of the International Council of Nurses and the American Nurses Association. She is eligible to be a nurse in any hospital in the world.

On Monday morning the entire staff of Passavant hospital will gather to honor Mrs. Huivla, who already is one of its most popular members. A large cake inscribed with the legend, "Mrs. Agnes Huivla, R.N.," will be cut.

The staff will pay tribute, not only to a newly registered nurse, but, in the words of Mrs. Lena Dietz, director of nurses at the hospital, it will also "pay tribute to a brave, fine woman, who never gave up, even in the face of great odds. Mrs. Huivla faced danger and even death to gain the freedom which too many of us in this country take for granted."

Waverly House, Over Century Old, Destroyed By Fire

Waverly—The home of Gordon Hankins was destroyed by fire Friday morning between 4 and 5 o'clock. The blame was placed on lightning. The house was owned by Miss Eunice VanWinkle and Mrs. Lela Funk, daughters of Mrs. M. VanWinkle, who died recently. Over 100 years old, home was remodeled about 1882.

Hankins, who was in bed, smelled smoke and found the back part of the building in flames.

A bed, vanity dresser and cedar chest were saved. The house was burned to the ground.

There was some insurance on the place and contents.

Hankins lost all his clothes. The few that were saved were scorched. The Waverly fire department responded to a summons about 4:30 a.m.

Whalebone was at one time worth $10,000 a ton.

Speeder Nabbed By Citizen Fined On Two Charges

John Allen Hacker, 20, of Chapin, who was taken into custody by a Jacksonville resident and his wife and driven to the Jacksonville police station, was given a double-header fine by Police Magistrate Russell J. Alvarez at the regular Saturday session of the court held at the City Hall.

According to police the complaint against Hacker was filed by William C. Cochran, 404 West Michigan avenue.

Cochran and his wife testified that Hacker was driving west on Michigan avenue and turned into South Diamond street, with Mr. and Mrs. Cochran following in their automobile.

The Cochrans said that they trailed Hacker through the downtown district and finally took him into custody on Brown street near East Douglas avenue.

After hearing the evidence Magistrate Alvarez fined Hacker $20 and costs for speeding on South Diamond street and $50 for reckless driving on West Michigan avenue.

It was the first time in several years that a citizen used his legal powers to arrest what he believed to be a law violator.

"These Well-Adjusted Children" is the result of Langdon and Stout's studies of these fortunate children's home and other environment.

"Your Best Friends Are Your Children," says Agnes Benedict in her book on parent-child relationships in everyday situations.

Special diets are no longer a problem with these books giving taste tempting recipes to fit various requirements: Sigel, "Good Food for Diabetics"; Jordan, "Good Food for Bad Stomachs"; Vaughan, "Good Food Without Salt"; and Koten, "The Low Calory Cookbook."

Readers who have families to feed will want to see "Kilander's Nutrition for Health." Hagman's "Good Health for Your Family" is a guide to sensible daily living.

If illness does come, "Home Nurses Handbook" by Gidges tells how to care for and keep a patient happy whether he is a child or older person. Miss Gidges also explains how to take temperature and pulse.

Dr. Hutschnecker, like many modern physicians, feels there is a close relationship between body and mind. He presents his theory in "The Will to Live" and gives practical advice on attaining his theory in "The Will to Live" and gives practical advice on attaining this life force.

Some other recent books that show the way toward emotional health are: Banks, "How to Live With Yourself;" Overstreet, "Understanding Fear in Ourselves and Others;" and Tracy, "How to Sleep without pills."

Remember when grandmothers were practically doomed to wear somber colors? Black, brown, and gray seemed to be about the extent of their color range. Now, grandmother trips along in all colors of the rainbow, gay as granddaughter herself. Best of all, she looks younger and feels younger, and no one thinks a thing about it. Remember?

DON'T TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT! DRIVE IN AND SEE FOR YOURSELF... IF YOUR CAR NEEDS WHEEL ALIGNING

The bad conditions of many highways this spring is more apt to throw the front of your wheels out of line. This can cause unneeded wear on your tires, enough to rob them of 2,000 to 3,000 miles of wear. Front wheels out of line on the modern cars of today, also means the car will be hard to steer and will have a tendency to swerve to one side of the road, which is dangerous when brakes are applied.

The John Beam Visualiner in the Service Department at Cox-Buick will show you whether your car needs wheel aligning service. This Visualiner projects micro accurate enlarged readings on two screens... these beams of light are easy to follow as corrections are being made.

Basic Essentials

Wardrobe Has Simple Needs

By Alicia Hart
NEA Beauty Editor

Does your wardrobe combine all the necessary ingredients to keep you looking well dressed on all occasions?

Actually, there are a minimum of basic essentials that will do the trick, and if you don't already have them start now to make the additions.

Every wardrobe requires one suit. Plan to have a contrasting skirt that you can pair off with the jacket. Achieve variations with blouses, belts and sweaters.

In the "dress" category, you should have a basic tailored dress that will be appropriate for the office or afternoon wear and a date dress. Since summer is almost here, think in terms of prints and city cottons.

Blouses, of course, can either be extremely dressy or on the more conservative side for daytime wear. There are some blouses, however, that strike a happy medium. These are especially good for the basic wardrobe because they can be dressed up or down with the help of jewelry and scarves.

If you are not a great hat enthusiast, you will be able to get along well with a tailored cloche or classic straw. This type of hat calls for little trim and fuss.

For dressier moments, your hat can be as fussy as you personally prefer. Just be sure you pick a line and style that is flattering to your particular type.

Shoes must suit your costume, too. For daily wear, pick the spectator or tailored flats with a medium heel. Naturally, more elegant shoes will be appropriate for dates and special occurrences.

Household Hints

A cracked pane of glass can be weatherproofed temporarily with a coat of shellac on the inside. Vision should not be obstructed by the shellac coat. Breezes and rain will be kept out until the pane is replaced.

To rid your slip of a soiled streak at the hem, scrub it with a well-soaped brush before putting the slip into the suds for laundering. This applies to your shoulder straps, as

When you slipcover your furniture for the summer, don't forget to cover the seats of side chairs too. If you like, use the leftover decorative fabrics for curtain tiebacks.

If you put vegetables into the refrigerator as soon after purchasing as possible, you will reduce vitamin losses. Wash and dry the vegetables well before storing.

The sea shells you find this summer will make fine ornaments and ash trays if you clean them thoroughly and allow them to dry. Apply two thin coats of fresh white shellac and wait for each one to dry.

It is dangerous to overload electric circuits. Don't plug too many appliances such as grills or waffle irons into one circuit.

Between shampoos, remove surface dust from your hair with a piece of cotton saturated with cologne or toilet water.

When you air large items like blankets and bedspreads, hang them with their weight distributed over two lines. Blankets should be moved occasionally to avoid line marks.

To keep draperies fresh, brush often with a whisk broom, or clean with a vacuum-cleaner attachment. Also give them an airing whenever you can.

If you think there's a gas leak in your cellar—or anywhere in the house—don't go searching for it with a match. Call your gas company, and keep your family out of the house. Open windows.

If you are cooking only part of a package of prunes at one time, store the remainder in a covered container in the refrigerator. They'll keep best this way.

Bridal Customs Are Changed And Make Everybody Happy

The 1952 bride pays as little or as much as she likes for her bridal gown and is in fashion either way. But just one hundred years ago, fashion decreed a minimum of $500 for a wedding dress and $125 for the veil! The veil, however, could be worn as a scarf later.

New York — (NEA) — The bridal vogue of 1952, that of the beautiful white dress and misty veil, hasn't always been with us. In Colonial days, for instance, brides wore bright, flowered brocades and cherry-and-primrose damask.

But once white moved into the fashion spotlight for weddings, brides took to it with glee. By 1850, Godey's Lady's Book was able to announce that the bride of fashion must pay at least $500 for her dress. And that, this magazine added, was reasonable!

Price for the veil was a mere $125 and this was a strictly practical expenditure since the veil could turn up later for evening wear as a sort of draped overskirt, or scarf.

Once paid for, the veil was adjusted to the bride's head with a wreath or "chaper" of flowers, a custom that had lasted since Anglo-Saxon days. A decade earlier, Queen Victoria's bridesmaids wore chaplets of white roses as they tripped down the aisle.

It was a Spanish beauty, Eugenie de Montijo, who held the unofficial title as one of the most romantic brides of this era. She became an Empress of France through her marriage to Napoleon III at Notre Dame Cathedral in 1853.

As his wedding gift, the Emperor handed Eugenie a 51-carat diamond and, not satisfied that this was enough, added a pair of pendant earrings with drops the size of almonds. These once had belonged to the ill-fated Marie Antoinette.

Eugenie was married twice to the same man. She went through both the religious and civil ceremonies. The gown she wore in church was white satin with a skirt tiered with five rows of frosty lace. The bodice was clasped and belted with sparkling diamonds.

This bouffant gown immediately set a fashion in this country and soon American brides were wearing seven petticoats, each deeply flounced.

The really great wedding ceremonies reached a peak in this country in the last years of the 19th Century when churches were huge. Homes were mansions, many of them large enough to shelter a thousand guests with ease. The champagne flowed, the music swelled and there were wedding souvenirs of solid silver for every guest.

During the 1880's and 1890's, it was the custom to carry bridal fans rather than bouquets. This was also the heyday of the orange blossom; brides even wore them in large knobs on their bustles as they glided altar-ward.

What was undoubtedly the biggest wedding production of the last century was staged at St. Thomas' Church in New York in the year 1895. It starred Consuela Vanderbilt, who became the bride of the Duke of Marlborough. The entire interior of the church was decked out in boatloads of rare orchids brought from the Duke's estate in England.

The Duke's gift to his bride was a diamond belt. Her parents handed over some pearls that had once belonged to Catharine of Russia. And among her other wedding gifts the Duchess found a pearl-and-diamond dog collar.

And, in that same decade, if you weren't a Vanderbilt but wanted to show off just the same, you could rent additional crystal, plate and clocks, together with gift boxes and tissue paper, in order to make a staggering display of wedding gifts to your friends!

To whiten yellowed knitted wear, make a solution of hydrogen peroxide and a small amount of household ammonia or sodium perborate.

Alias Basil Willing

By Helen McCloy

Copyright 1951 by Helen McCloy Brown, printed through permission of the publisher, Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Dr. Basil Willing has been talking to suspects in the murder of Jack Duggan, private detective, who was poisoned while posing as Basil at a dinner party given by Dr. Duggan, a psychiatrist, had followed Duggan to Zimmer's place because Duggan had been posing as Basil Willing. Duggan also before he can tell why. The next morning an aged blind woman, Miss Katherine Shaw, who also was at the party, is found dead. In questioning her nephew Brinsley, Basil is told that Duggan may have been poisoned because someone thought he was really Dr. Willing.

XII

"THE Lawrence happen to be friends of mine," said Rosamund York. "It was I who recommended Max to Perdita. And Stephen isn't really a recluse. He's here somewhere this afternoon. Would you like to see him? I know he'd enjoy meeting you."

Rosamund darted toward a group near one of the windows. "Stephen! Do let me interrupt for a moment. There's a friend of mine here whom I'd like you to meet." Basil had spent too much time in hospitals not to see at a glance that Stephen Lawrence was a man chronically ill. He had the winnowed look of someone who endures pain. It wasn't altogether a matter of frail body, sunken cheeks, thinning hair and faded blue eyes. It wasn't even the lightness of his breathing, the slowness of his motions and the gentleness of his manner. It was rather his singularly sweet-tempered smile and his look of detached serenity. He was like paper which has burned away so slowly that the dead ash retains the shape of solidity, yet actually is so fragile that it will crumble to dust at the first touch.

THE two men had hardly exchanged a greeting when York came back with Mannattans and new arrivals claimed Rosamund's attention.

"Rosamund does like to pretend people are chessmen to be pushed around and made to play her game for her, but she needn't have bothered this time. I know all about it."

"All about what?"

"Duggan. When we left Zimmer's last night Rosamund came home, but I went on to the Standard Club. I've got insomnia, so I spend a little time at the club every night after midnight to see how things are going. Zimmer called me there after you and the inspector left him."

"Why?" ventured Basil.

York shrugged. "I'm supposed to have influence."

"Why didn't he call Canning?"

"He did. Zimmer is thorough. I told him even Canning can't control the papers. Zimmer is sure the Duggan business has nothing to do with him and he's afraid it will hurt his practice."

The red of Rosamund's painted cheeks and lips caught Basil's eye. She was talking to Gisela on the other side of the room. Basil thought of the vampire legend—the "living dead," refreshed and rosy when they are gorged with the blood of the living.

The gathering had reached high tide sometime ago. Now it was ebbing and in a few minutes there were only two other guests left besides the Willings—Stephen Lawrence and a girl. Only then did Basil recognize her as Lawrence's daughter, Perdita.

She wore wine-red velvet that brought out the pastel delicacy of her coloring—silvery blonde hair, apple blossom skin. But there was something wanting in her prettiness. The pink mouth was too soft, the mouth of a sleeper or a child. The eyes were too empty of all interest in the world around her. Her manner was charming—quiet without a trace of shyness. No doubt a product of elaborate training and expensive education. Intellectually she could have been 25 or 30, but physically and emotionally she was like an enlarged child rather than a grown-up young woman.

Gisela looked up at Basil with a smile. "She's been telling me the most interesting things about her work in a settlement house. She teaches painting to children after school."

"I don't teach, really?" Even Perdita's voice was immature, treble and thin. "I just hand them pieces of wrapping paper and old jam jars of poster paint and turn them loose. They have a wonderful time. The only happy time in their whole day. They hate their schools and they hate their homes. Sometimes I wonder what they will be like when they grow up."

York laughed shortly. "They'll be like me. I was slum bred. York is an abbreviation of some Slavic name that immigration officers couldn't spell in the nineties."

ROSAMUND had turned to Lawrence. "Did Dr. Willing tell you what happened to Duggan last night?"

"Duggan?" Lawrence was puzzled. "Who's he?"

"The little man who was announced as Dr. Willing last night at Max Zimmer's."

"He was a private detective calling himself Willing," explained Basil.

"And do you know," added Rosamund, "just a few moments after he left Max Zimmer's, this poor little man, in perfectly good health, collapsed and died?"

Perdita sprang to her feet, face paper white as only a very fair skin can be when it is drained and bloodless. "In good health, yet he died?"

"He was poisoned by some opiate, according to the papers," said Rosamund. "Probably codeine."

"I take codeine myself," remarked Lawrence. "Almost anyone might have some of Perdita's eyes as her eyeballs rolled under the lids. He caught her as her knees buckled. Gisela took the girl's head in her lap, stroked her forehead. Stephen knelt beside her, chafing the cold hands, calling his daughter's name softly. (To Be Continued)

Two Carrollton Men Will Sing In Mury Opera

Carrollton—William Alfeld, son of the late J. S. Alfeld and Mrs. J. S. Alfeld and Carroll Wayham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wayham, will both be members of the chorus at the Municipal Opera in St. Louis this year.

Wayham, who is a member of the bass section is beginning his 5th year with Municipal Opera and spent one season singing in the Opera in Houston, Texas.

Alfeld, a tenor, completed his audition Tuesday evening and will go to St. Louis to begin rehearsals for the opera season which opens June 5.

He is a member of the choir of the local Baptist church and studied voice here under the supervision of Miss Nita Ford. He also studied at Shurtleff College, Alton and the Ohio University. He holds a master's degree in international relations from Columbia University, N. Y.

Alfeld, a World War II veteran, had completed auditions and been accepted into the chorus of the Municipal Opera several years ago, but was unable to accept the opportunity at that time as he was called into service in the army at the same time.

50 Pairs Of Quail Released By State In Morgan County

The quail stocking program of breeder birds totaling 9,060 has just been completed in 77 counties in the state. More than 100, in pairs, went into stocking Morgan county, according to Jack Montgomery, superintendent of game propagation in the Illinois Conservation Department.

"All of these birds are better stock than has been released in the past several years," Montgomery said, "all being mature and in good shape."

From 12 to 15 boxes, with eight quail in each box, were released in each of the counties in the state's quail range, the releases varying according to the desirability of the habitat offered by the local landowners.

According to Montgomery this is the first year in the past three when some farmer landowner did not refuse stocking on his property. Likewise, he said, liberations in the past several years have been greater in number than during the previous ten years.

Now that the farm restocking program has been completed the men in Montgomery's department are preparing for the crop of quail chicks which will be furnished to the organized quail clubs in the various counties. These clubs hold them in brooders for about five and one-half weeks, then place them in outside holding pens for another five and one-half weeks after which they are released to find their own food and cover.

The men in the game propagation division work with the county investigator of the law enforcement division during this raising period, checking each quail club to see that the chicks are properly cared for and are usually on hand for the releasing date.

Picture Posing Is Great Fun, Especially at Graduation Time

The pictures taken on Graduation Day will remain treasured possessions your whole life through. That is why it is so important to understand the working of the camera you use, and also the technique of achieving pretty poses of friends and family.

BY ANNETTE GREEN, NEA Staff Writer

New York—(NEA)—Half the fun of graduation day is recording the memories with your camera. You'll want to take snaps of the gang that's left behind, favorite teachers, visiting friends and family, and, of course, your classmates in their caps and gowns.

You certainly don't have to be a professional photographer to get satisfactory results, but if your subjects usually print up with heads nearly out of focus, or even chopped off, there's little doubt that you better spend sometime on the subject of picture taking.

It is a good idea to start out with a camera and flash attachment for pictures to be taken indoors or out. For your outside shots, use mid-morning or mid-afternoon sun whenever possible. This is especially important if you're using color film. Take a number of pictures. Each good situation should offer a variety of possibilities.

Try not to pose people. Aim for informal pictures where your subjects are not standing in a stiff row or staring right into the camera. Natural expressions and action will give you the best type of shots.

Select simple background, either lighter or darker than your subject. And don't pose a friend standing in front of a tree or pole in such a manner that the tree seems to be growing right out of her head. The sun should be behind you or to your side.

For close-ups, focus your camera sharply, or if your camera is a fixed-focus box type, use a close-up attachment over the regular lens. This allows you to move in as close as three to four and one-half feet to the person you're photographing for a head and shoulder snapshot.

The sky or a plain wall background is ideal if you intend to concentrate on your subject's face. And whatever you do, don't forget to wind the film after every picture.

Should you want to take some snaps of the old schoolhouse, remember the best time is when the sun slants across the front of the building. Snapshooting a building from a direct front or center position is seldom a good idea.

And don't tilt your camera towards the building. It distorts the view. Instead, raise the camera level by standing on something. Very tall buildings are an exception to the rule, of course, because it's often impossible to keep the camera level in this case.

Tilting the camera sharply up, when photographing a tall slender building, produces an exaggerated height effect which is often interesting.

When you are taking pictures of such an important occasion as your graduation, you will probably want to try some color shots. There are several types of color film available.

for the amateur. One popular type produces a color negative from which any number of positive color prints may be made.

Another type of color film gives positive color transparencies for screen projection, or making of prints. These films are made both for artificial and natural light.

There are several points you should keep in mind when you are photographing in color. Try for even lighting rather than lighting which is heavily contrasted. A shadow shows up more heavily in a picture than it does to the eye. For the best outdoor color pictures, shoot in bright or hazy sunlight.

To soften strong shadows on the subject's face—use a reflector or white paper, or a white sheet. If the wall of the house is white, it too will serve as a reflector. If you're using a flash attachment, a blue bulb flash lamp will soften shadows on bright day pictures taken at a moderate distance.

Once you become proficient in handling your camera, you'll find it offers you one of the happiest hobbies you have ever acquired. And what fun you and your friends will have looking back at "the good old days."

Why does milk contribute notably to the strength, health, and vitality of full-grown men and women? We know, of course, that this food is indispensable to all growing children, to all nursing and expectant mothers, and that all these individuals should have at least a quart of milk a day in some form.

The answer is simple. Milk offers an exceptionally well-balanced combination of essential dietary factors, easily digested and utilized by the body. It contains fat and sugar to supply energy for the human machine; it has calcium for building strong bones; it has a superior protein to replace and repair bodily tissues. That is why a quart of milk a day is desirable for both children and grownups, but be sure you get the milk of highest quality, the milk that won first prize at the Illinois State Fair—

Chicago, May 10.—(P)—All grains except rye dipped gently on the Board of Trade today. There wasn't any selling pressure on the market, but the splendid outlook for new crop grains discouraged speculative buying.

Wife Of Justice Wears 2 Earrings On Same Ear: Hat

Washington, May 10.—(P)—Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Supreme Court justice, only smiled when another woman whispered, "Do you know you have two earrings on the same ear?"

"Yes, I know," Mrs. Burton replied. Then she got into the elevator in her apartment building and sallied forth to yesterday's White House reception for the judiciary.

There she had to explain: Her slanting hat covered the right ear and she wanted both bobs to show, so she put them top and bottom of her left ear.

John L. Fahs collector of internal revenue for Florida, made the estimate on the basis of payments by gamblers holding federal tax stamps.

During the five-month period from December through April, Fahs said, 633 gamblers paid $141,355 to the government. This supposedly represents 10 per cent of their gross "take."

Fahs said he believed most of the state's gamblers had registered, and paid their 10 per cent tax.

U. S. Wholesale Price Index Rises

Washington, May 10.—(P)—The government's wholesale price index rose for the first time in six weeks during the week ended May 6.

An advance of one-tenth of 1 per cent was announced by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This brought the index to 111.3 per cent of the 1947-49 average—3.2 per cent below the January average and nine-tenths of 1 per cent below March.

Prices for farm products were the highest by grains, hogs, eggs, soy beans, oranges, potatoes and coffee. There were declines for poultry, cattle, raw cotton and some fresh vegetables.

There were few features in the market. Some steels appeared to lag but without emphasis.

Johns-Manville, with a good sales record back of it, was up around a point at times.

Northern Pacific was a trifle more active than other rails or oils and lost a major fraction.

Brokers feel that the current let-down in trading activity in the stock market results directly from a cautious attitude toward the steel industry fight.

Higher today were American Cyanamid, du Pont, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube. Lower were Bethlehem Steel, American Smelting, and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Salaries For Local Teachers Above The State Average

By Julian Rammelkamp

One of the problems a community must grapple with during a period of rising living costs is the matter of teachers' salaries. Living on fixed incomes and never paid munificent sums, public school teachers are among the first in a community to feel the pinch when prices shoot skyward.

The problem came before the Jacksonville board of education earlier this school year when a delegation from the faculty appeared at a board meeting to ask an increase. After considering the matter at some length, the board agreed to grant the teachers a cost-of-living bonus, effective during the next fiscal year.

At the time the bonus was granted local school authorities noted that the salary scale had been at least reached a satisfactory basis by 1950 after a long process of adjustment from the extremely low pay prevailing during and after the Great Depression. As one board member put it, "it took a great deal of effort spread over several years to get the salary schedule in line with the actualities of living costs and to enable the Jacksonville public school system to attract and hold an able, efficient faculty."

He added that "we had succeeded in arriving at a satisfactory pay scale before the summer of 1950. Then the Communists invaded South Korea and prices began to zoom upward in America. Korea upset our appellation."

A Subjective Problem
But since the adequacy of a person's remuneration is always to a great extent a subjective matter and since, too, everybody and every school system in the United States is a victim of the inflationary pressures induced by the Korean War, the question of how well a teacher in Morgan county is paid may better be answered by a look at some comparative statistics compiled by John C. Deem, superintendent of the county's schools.

For the past two years Deem annually has conducted a state-wide survey of teachers' salaries. Each county superintendent in Illinois is asked to furnish figures showing the situation among the elementary teachers in the public schools of his county. "So far, the response has been 100 percent," the local superintendent says.

Deem's report is unique. It is the only one of its kind compiled by any public school official in Illinois. According to the superintendent, "to my knowledge there is no similar report made by either the State Department of Public Instruction, the Illinois Education Association or the Illinois Association of School Boards."

Deem took up this project of his own volition when, as superintendent, he found himself grappling with the recurring problem of teachers' salaries. "I had few figures to go by," Deem said. "In order to have some guide, some reliable standard with which to judge where Morgan county stands and what our goals should be, I began to collect statistics from all of the state's county superintendents."

Valuable Report
The report, issued recently, throws a white light on the whole problem. It shows, for instance, that the counties in Northern Illinois generally have higher salary schedules than Central or Southern counties do and that the teachers in the Central counties, of which Morgan is one, are generally better off than those located in Little Egypt. Teachers in cities and towns fare better than teachers in rural school districts. There are exceptions, but these general observations largely prevail.

Situated in the central part of the state and characterized by both a substantial urban population and a prosperous rural population, it might be expected at the outset that Morgan county's teachers would be paid on an average or slightly above average scale. And such, indeed, appears to be the case.

Morgan county ranks seventeenth in the entire state in its pay scale for elementary teachers. A school system is accounted a "city" system if it serves more than 7,500 people. The average here is $3,377. Outside of Chicago (Cook county) Sangamon pays the highest average, $3,960. Scott and Jersey counties do not fare so well in this category. Jersey ranks fifty-first and Scott next to the last, or fifty-fifth. The latter pays an average $2,374 to its elementary teachers.

Among rural school systems Morgan also does well. Elementary teachers here who teach in the few remaining one-room schools get an average $2,465. Macon county leads with an average of $3,046. Cass county is forty-third with $2,200. Pike is sixty-eighth with $1,950. Scott seventieth with $1,943, and Greene is fourth from the bottom, eighty-sixth, with an average $1,706.

Village Type Schools
According to Deem's statistics, Morgan doesn't do so well in the village elementary teacher department, but still it has nothing to be ashamed of. It is forty-ninth, or almost exactly in the middle, in a list of 110 counties ranged in 98 rankings. "Village" schools are districts larger than one-room but serve populations smaller than 7,500. In other words, this category covers most of Morgan's schools outside Jacksonville. The average pay for elementary teachers here is $2,638.

Of this group Cass is fifty-second, with $2,621 average pay. Pike is seventy-sixth with $2,350, and Greene is near the bottom again at ninety-fourth paying an average $1,831. Jersey and Scott counties have no schools in this group. Madison county, in southwestern Illinois, pays the highest average, $3,565.

From these figures it may be at least concluded, whatever the adequacy of pay in view of inflationary times and whatever may be the plight of teachers who receive below average checks, that Jacksonville and Morgan county teachers are, on an average, better off than their brothers and sisters in most of the state.

Without Hill Gail Preakness Is Scramble

By Max Fullerton
Baltimore, May 10 —(P)— Every-body agrees it's a shame about Hill Gail.

But his passing from the preakness scene is pretty sure to add more zing to what now will be a real scramble for the second part of the triple crown.

The Calumet farm's Kentucky derby winner was removed as a preakness contender because of an ankle growth which must be fixed. He's also out of the Belmont stakes, since he will not race again for several months.

There'll be no holder of racing's triple crown in 1952.

There'll be no holder of racing's triple crown in 1952.

When the band begins "Maryland, My Maryland," at old Pimlico next Saturday there could be as many as a dozen three-year-olds in the 7th running of the preakness.

Dixiana stable's Sub Fleet, second by two lengths to Hill Gail in the derby, rules right now as the favorite.

The $75,000-added preakness, at a mile and three sixteenths, is worth $105,770 as of now. There will be an additional $750 in the pot for each starter.

The old Hilltop ground can hold more than 40,000 people by considerable squeezing. Last year's attendance was 27,000. The best ever was 42,000 in 1946. The preakness will be televised (CBS), as was the derby.

The Maryland jockey club has on its roster 14 possible starters—three or four of them in the very doubtful class.

Besides Sub Fleet, they are: White Oak Stable's Blue Man, who ran third in the derby; John C. Clark's Charlie McAdam, Mrs. G. Guiberson's Arroz, M. Kahlbaum's Jampol, Gustav Smith's handsome Teddy, Brookmeade stable's suggested and Roaring Bull, J. J. Amiel's Count Flame, Starmount stable's Prime, Cain Hoy stable's Armageddon, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Whither, G. F. Strickland's Lord Priam, and Walter Jeffords' One Count.

Roaring Bull is not likely to go, since his trainer said he isn't in a class with the rest. Two other eligibles definitely are out—High Ground stable's Comte De Grasse with a bowed tendon, and Main Chance farm's Jet-A-Dandy suffering from barked shins.

Rush, Jackson Team To Give Cubs 3-1 Win Over Bucs

Chicago, May 10 —(P)—Bob Rush twirled a four-hitter and Ransom Jackson belted his fifth homer of the season today as the Chicago Cubs shaded the floundering Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1.

It was the third win against two defeats for Rush, ace right-hander, who was nipped for the only Pittsburgh run in the seventh as Koshorek doubled and scored on pinch-hitter George Metkovich's scratch single.

The Pirates, whose Murry Dickson was charged with his fifth defeat, against one win, now have lost 19 of their 23 games. Dickson left after yielding eight hits in six innings and was followed by Ted Wilks, who gave three more Cub hits.

Bill Holland Heads List Of Big Name Pilots

Big, fast speedway-type racing cars piloted by the cream of the crop in professional pilot circle, will roar around the Jacksonville Fairgrounds half-mile track for the fourth annual IMCA sanctioned Spring championship on Sunday, May 25, Ed Jackson, Zingabed Grotto secretary, has announced.

The spectacular afternoon of racing is being sponsored by Zingabed Grotto and is sanctioned by the International Motor Contest Assn.

Already the lure of fat cash purses and fame on the local fairgrounds track has brought entries from outstanding drivers in the nation, according to Jackson.

Heading the early entries is Bill Holland, of Indianapolis "500" fame, who notified Jackson that he is entering his Blue Crown Special.

Holland is no stranger to dirt track fans throughout the Mid-West. In his four starts in the famous Memorial Day 500-mile grind Holland has either won the event or finished second. His lead foot and driving courage and skill continues to make him the most feared speedster on the dirt banked oval.

His entering the Jacksonville sprint has aroused much comment and speculation among veteran speedway "rail birds."

Other crack speedway pilots haven't allowed Holland's early entry to scare them off. Already entered to question the 500 winner's sprint daring are such notables as Bobby Grim, of Indianapolis, who will guide his nationally famous "City of Roses" Offenhauser; Italian-American Pete Motta, a dapper Dan from St. Louis, who's Circle-2 Offenhauser is one of the hottest Mid-Western cars; Vern Bradley, of Rock Island, Ill., with his Granor; and newcomer Jimmy Campbell, of Bates City, Mo., with his brand-new Kurtis-Kraft-Offenhauser.

Time trials will start at 1:30 p.m. with the first race being flagged off at 2:30.

Jim Hearn Posts 3rd Win, Giants Trim Braves 4-2

Boston, May 10 —(P)—Right-hander Jim Hearn held the Boston Braves to three hits, including homers by Walker Cooper and Ed Mathews, while clocking off his third win against no defeats for the New York Giants today by a 4-2 margin.

Despite his artistic performance, Hearn found himself locked in a 2-2 tie until the seventh when, with two out, four of his teammates connected for successive singles to wrap up the game.

The timely blows were struck by Bob Thomson, former Tribesman Bob Elliott, Don Mueller and ex-Brave Alvin Dark and they chased Warren Spahn, the Tribal left-hander, who now has only one victory to offset three setbacks.

Young Notre Dame Eleven Wins 33-6 Over Old-Timers

South Bend, Ind., May 10 —(P)— Notre Dame's 1952 football team showed the Irish old-timers some things they'd forgotten today, 33-6.

Quarterback Ralph Guglielmi scored the first and last touchdowns on short sneaks and threw 25 yards to John Latimer for another. Neil Worden scored twice on one-back slants of 46 and 24 yards.

Bob Martin, a reserve quarterback on loan to the old-timers, passed to senior John Pettibon for the veterans' touchdown. The play covered 76 yards, 45 yards in the air.

The old timers were held to minus 10 yards by rushing. The game is the traditional windup of spring training.

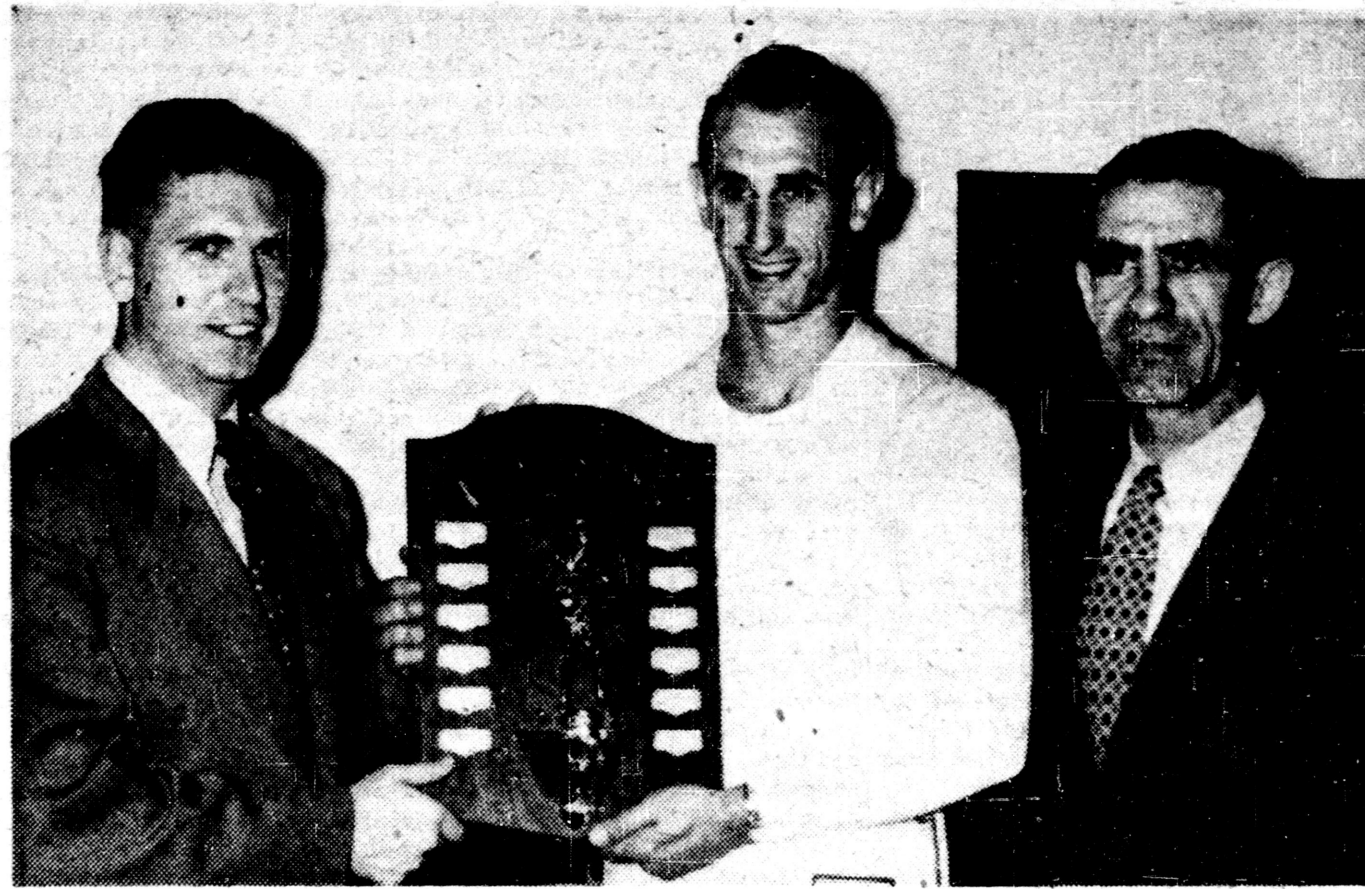

West Rockford Thinclads Win District Meet

Rockford, Ill., May 10 —(P)—West High of Rockford piled up 55 1/2 points to pace 33 contenders in the 27th northwestern district high school track and field meet today.

East Rockford was second with 41 1/2 points and DeKalb third with 16 1/2.

Two new district marks were set. Lee Giesman of Hononegah high school of Rockton, the meet's only double winner, set a 180-yard low hurdle mark of .209 in the preliminaries. In the pole-vault, Dick Propp of East Rockford hung up a new mark of 11 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER THEM BY

Bob Merris (left) of the Jacksonville Journal-Courier presents Jacksonville high school basketball captain Ron Kemp and Coach John Chapman with a 14 by 18 inch plaque commemorating this year's Crimson state basketball team. The trophy is a gift of this newspaper and is just another way of honoring the 1952 team, the first to represent Jacksonville in the state tournament finals since 1911.

The trophy is headed "1952 State Tournament Team." Six individual shields on each side of the plaque carry names of the ten cagers, plus head coach Chapman and athletic director Bob Kraushaar. The central figure is that of a basketball player passing the ball.

The trophy will be displayed in the new gymnasium.

Good Golf's Easy

True Putt Stroked Squarely With Blade In Straight Line

By JACKIE BURKE
Golf's Newest Star

Every individual must develop his own putting style, but all putting strokes have the same basic fundamentals.

No matter how you do it, the firm, true putt must be stroked squarely and the blade must go in a straight line in the desired direction, the face of the putter looking at the cup during the entire stroke.

Even a slight cutting across will put English on the ball, causing it to curl away from the hole, or rim the cup, if it comes that close.

The more accurate putters use the shortest backswing possible to achieve the distance.

Backswings are made close to the ground.

The forward stroke is smooth. This kind of stroke reduces the margin for error.

Don't think too much about holding practice putts. Concentrate on the stroke.

Practicing, it is advisable to start with short ones and work back as you smooth out your stroke.

Don't spend too much time lining up putts. A quick survey of the green should tell you just what line the putt should take. Then the problem is to hit the ball right, so concentrate on it.

The importance of putting cannot be overestimated. Anybody can hit the ball. It takes a real golfer to put all his shots together, blending the happy formula that produces a good game.

A three-foot putt is every bit as important as a 250-yard drive. Each counts one stroke.

All the champions I've seen have been good putters. My dad told me Harry Vardon wasn't always so good on the green, but that when he was winning he wasn't exactly a bad putter. He couldn't have been a poor putter and won and been the British master.

GOOD LOOK—The face of the putter looks at the cup during the entire stroke. (NEA)

Analyze your next good round and you may be amazed at how few putts you took.

You may find that you saved all your strokes on the greens.

A prime example of that was the record-breaking 30 Jimmy Demaret shot on the back nine of the Masters Tournament of 1940. Jimmy had six birdies and three pars.

He required just 12 putts. That means he was six under par, and those six strokes were saved on the greens. His golf from tee to green was not of the Fourth of July variety.

Jimmy Demaret's putting was spectacular, however, and therein lies the story of a record-breaking round.

Yankees Score 11 Runs In 7th, Pound Bosox 18-3

New York, May 10 —(P)—The New York Yankees went to town in old Yankee style today, pounding across 11 runs in the seventh inning to gain an 18-3 victory over Boston's youthful Red Sox.

Sixteen bombers paraded to the plate in the big seventh. Nine hit safely, two walked, one was hit by a pitched ball and another gained a life on an error by shortstop Joe Piersall.

The Yanks scored nine runs before Andy Carey fled out for the first out. The first six Yanks up singled. The hit parade was interrupted when Irv Noren was hit by a pitched ball. Yogi Berra then singled and Gene Woodling was safe on an error. Gil McDougall, who started the rally, walked and Johnny Hopp singled before Carey made the first out.

Relief pitcher Jim McDonald struck out Hank Bauer, the hitting star of the game, doubled to send home the tenth and eleventh runs.

Phil Rizzuto followed with a walk. Noren finally ended the Red Sox misery by flying out. Walt Masterson, Randy Gumpert and Jim Atkins were the victims of the Yankee bombardment.

Jacksonville High Team Places Third In Macomb District

Macomb —(Special)— A dark-horse Jacksonville high school team placed third in the Macomb District Saturday afternoon and qualified two individual performers and a relay team for the state finals to be held at the University of Illinois this Friday and Saturday.

All-around athlete Ron Kemp won the 100 yard dash by reeling off a 10.5 race. Jacksonville's little south-paw pole vaulter Dick Barnes, placed a fast second in the 880 yarder to qualify for the state. First and second place in every event will make the Champaign unmet.

The Crimson relay team, comprised of Kemp, George Jones, Fred Goodey and Norvel Cannon, placed a fast second in the 880 yarder to qualify for the state. First and second place in every event will make the Champaign unmet.

Crimson track coach Hal Wimberly was unable to be with his squad today because of his small son's illness. Tim Fennessey and Jane Murestrov, who coached both Kemp and Barnes at South Jacksonville, took the five-man team to Macomb. Every Jacksonville high school athlete who made the trip qualified for the state championship.

Illinois School for the Deaf's athlete Bill VanSoanekren successfully defended his broad jump title with a leap of 19-11. He will return to the state finals for the second straight year.

Lawton Yeakel of Meredosia established a new district record in the shot putt with a toss of 48-11. Yeakel is also a two-time winner. The old record was 48-3 set by Barclay of Macomb in 1947.

Monmouth's Thinclads reeled off 47 points to win the meet over a field of 31 high schools.

Guincy high was second with 21 tallies in defeating the Crimson boys produced 17.

Announce Program For Free Swimming Lessons Held At Nichols Park

Free swimming lessons will be given at Nichols Park starting June 9, it was announced by local Y.M.C.A. and Red Cross officials Saturday.

Paul Hartman of the Y and Mrs. Mary Cade of the Red Cross released a complete schedule for the summer. Qualified instructors have been hired and the program is ready to get underway as soon as school vacation begins.

Over 1,000 kids and adults took advantage of these swimming lessons last summer. Instructions begin at 9 a.m. and last until noon. Adult classes are usually conducted from 9 to 10 in the evening.

Many children from counties other than Morgan were enrolled in the course last summer. They will probably be accepted this year, if the classes do not become overcrowded.

An application blank will appear on these pages for the next few days. Applicants are asked to complete the blanks and mail to Paul Hartman at the Y.M.C.A. in Jacksonville.

Highlight of the swimming lessons will be a water carnival and swimming demonstration to be presented at the close of the course. Hundreds of spectators witnessed this evening last August.

Each of the four courses contains ten lessons. Officials stressed that these ten lessons must be completed before a swimmer can advance into the next course. If bad weather intervenes, the lessons will be made up on Saturdays or the entire program will be set back.

One additional stipulation has been made by Red Cross officials this year. A child must be at least 12 inches tall to enroll. This is a safety measure.

It was also stressed that swimmers may enroll in all four courses. It is expected that a non-swimmer may start at the beginning and become a junior or senior life saver by the end of the summer.

Chicago Glovers Gain 5-5 Draw With Italians

Rome, May 10.—(P)—Chicago's Golden Glovers rallied stoutly in the heavier weight divisions tonight to gain a 5-5 draw with a hand-picked team of Italian amateur boxers.

Thus the United States forces closed out their European invasion without a team victory in four international matches. The Americans were beaten by Ireland before they fought successive draws with France and Germany.

Down four bouts to one after the lighter weight classes, the Chicago team won four of the last five skirmishes to gain the tie.

Ed Sanders, former Los Angeles collegian, clinched this great comeback with a clean-cut decision over Italy's European heavyweight champion, Francesco Cavicchi.

Dummy umpires a lot of ball games. Despite his 73 years, the ex-pitcher can don the chest protector and mask and call as good a ball and strike game as we've seen. He'll work about 6 games a week during the college and high school season.

Dummy was responsible for getting Dick Sipek, former ISD athlete, a job in the majors. Dick played center field for the Cincinnati Reds for one season during the war. He's playing class B ball right now.

When Jacksonville high school's track team came through to win third place in the Macomb District Saturday, it gave the local high school its best athletic record in many years. The Crimsons weren't supposed to have a chance. Yet Coach Hal Wimberly has placed five boys in the state finals.

Normal, Ill., May 10.—(P)—Chillicothe won the heavyweight crown and Bethalto the lightweight title in a state grade school track meet today.

Beardstown was second with 18 points in the heavyweight competition. Alton third with 16 and Gillespie fourth with 15.

Robinson was runnerup in the lightweight division with 14 points. Athens third with 13 and Fisher fourth with 12.

FAN BREEZES

Luther "Dummy" Taylor, a former New York Giant pitcher and now a resident of Jacksonville, has been hired by his old club to scout central Illinois for prospective players.

Dummy received notification of his new job from Giant President Horace Stoneham Saturday. And there's no one with more qualifications for such a post. Taylor, one of the few deaf mutes to ever play in the big leagues, was an outstanding pitcher for John McGraw's old Giants from 1900 to 1908.

Dummy umpires a lot of ball games. Despite his 73 years, the ex-pitcher can don the chest protector and mask and call as good a ball and strike game as we've seen. He'll work about 6 games a week during the college and high school season.

Dummy was responsible for getting Dick Sipek, former ISD athlete, a job in the majors. Dick played center field for the Cincinnati Reds for one season during the war. He's playing class B ball right now.

When Jacksonville high school's track team came through to win third place in the Macomb District Saturday, it gave the local high school its best athletic record in many years. The Crimsons weren't supposed to have a chance. Yet Coach Hal Wimberly has placed five boys in the state finals.

Strange as it may seem a woman is credited with giving Coach Wimberly his state track timbre. Jane Murgatroyd coached at South Jacksonville grade school when Ron Kemp and Dick Barnes were stripplings. Jane put the southside school on the map so

"If you don't find anything wrong with me, I'm going to quit seeing you twice a year—I can't stand the suspense between visits!"

For example, a hundredweight of live hogs was equal in value on April 15 to 9.8 bushels of corn compared to 12.4 bushels in April last year.

Springfield, Ill., May 10—(P)—Farm feed prices for mid-April showed an increase over a similar period last year while livestock and its products, except milk, followed a downward trend.

J. A. Ewing, state Agriculture department statistician, expressed the changes yesterday by means of ratios.

Gerald H. Fox, St. Louis banker and investment specialist, will be the featured speaker in the fourth and final program in the Women's Finance Forum. He will speak on the subject, "Introduction to Investments," to an estimated 400 persons in Tuesday afternoon and evening programs at the Dunlap hotel.

A film, "Fair Exchange," will be exhibited at the conclusion of Fox's remarks, after which he will open an informal question-and-answer period in which the audience will participate.

Purpose of the program, as with the three previous ones, is to advise local women on problems of family finance. The talks by the various speakers who have appeared thus far have been informal and pitched to the average income levels existing in this area. By means of a question-and-answer period or the utilization of a panel of experts, problems of family financing encountered by local women and their families are discussed.

As far as possible Tuesday's program, as were those in the past, will be placed in the hands of the audience itself.

Tuesday's speaker, Fox, is widely known throughout the Middle West as a specialist on investments, particularly for the family unit of moderate income. He is also the sales director for Illinois Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, one of the largest financial houses in St. Louis. He is a registered representative of the New York Stock Exchange and the National Association of Security Dealers.

A social hour, featuring coffee and refreshments, will conclude the program both afternoon and evening.

The afternoon program will begin at 3 o'clock and the evening affair at 7:30 o'clock. Tickets for both lectures are still available upon request at the Elliott State Bank, sponsor of the Forum, or at the door at the hotel. There is no admission fee.

WITH ONE HAND — HE MOVES BRICK HOUSE

Moving any kind of house requires work and skill. Moving a brick house takes more of the same.

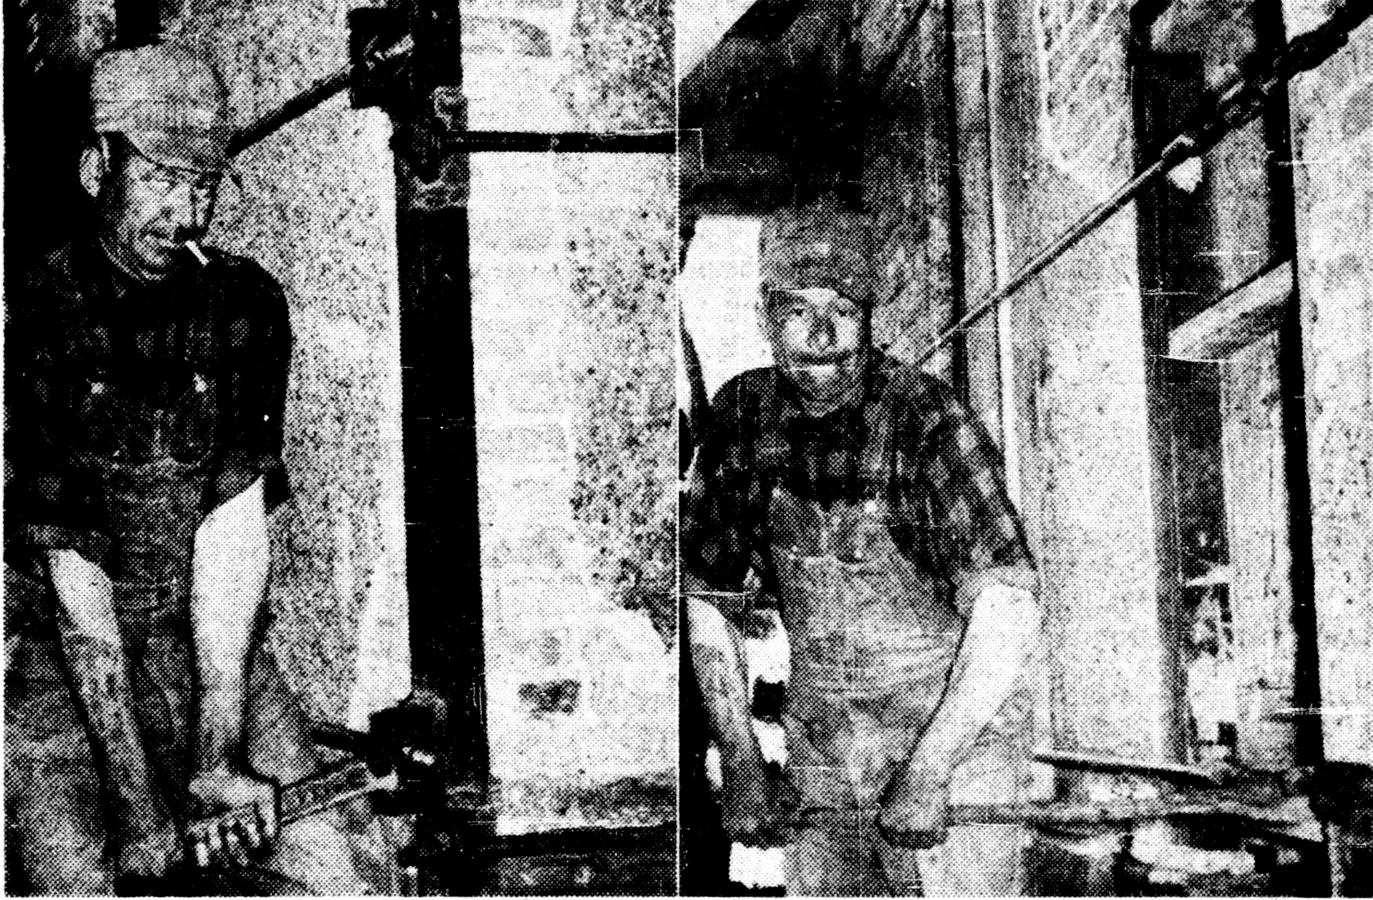

Friday morning a brick house was moved in Jacksonville, the first in the history of the city.

It was the residence of Rev. Samuel S. Waddell, at 812 West Morton avenue. The Petersburg Construction company moved it 60 feet south, to make room for the proposed U. S. 36 by-pass.

The men could have moved it to Florida just as well. It was crated, and on wheels. But the task of getting a brick house on wheels takes a lot of work, and special know-how.

The photo above shows Dan Dailey of Petersburg at the crank of a 35-year-old winch. He had an easy job of it, pulling the eight room brick structure onto the new foundation shown in the foreground.

The photo was taken soon after the house began moving southward. The rest of the eight man crew was busy checking wheels, trucks, braces, bars, chains, etc.

The photo at left shows W. G. (Everyday Bill) Craig, the bossman, as he strains to tighten one of the heavy rods that hold the individual bricks in place as the house was lifted, and then moved.

Craig was born on the Choctaw reservation in Oklahoma 53 years ago. His father was a stone worker and Bill went to work when he was 12.

Heavy turnbuckles were tightened again just before the house was moved.

Tightening the steel girdle wasn't enough to insure the safety of the building, since every uplified brick was ready to fall.

The corner angle irons were welded to the three massive steel beams which had been placed horizontally under the house. The photo shows Dailey using an electric welder.

Then came the job of hoisting the house and placing it on 15 trucks running on three sets of tracks.

This is a job that will quickly cull the boys from the men. Brawny Pat Craig, Bill's son, is shown as he forces one of the 45 screw jacks up another eighth of an inch. This job was particularly tedious, since there was little tolerance—all sections of the house had to go up together, or fall apart.

It didn't.

Rev. and Mrs. Waddell will move back within the next two weeks.

Macbeth To Be Illinois College Graduation Play

The Illinois College Hilltoppers, under the direction of Miss Octavia K. Frees, will conclude an active year with the presentation of Shakespeare's Macbeth.

The play will be given on the Ames Woodland Stage, which was originally designed and planned for the interpretation of Shakespearean plays.

This production will be of special interest because Miss Frees is presenting the characters as Shakespeare drew them and the scenes proceed in the order of the original script.

Shakespeare was 42 years old when he wrote Macbeth and was at the full perfection of all his powers of thought and feeling. The play is outstanding for its lofty imagination and rapidity of action, according to William Hazlitt, English essayist and critic. The scenery has been especially designed to develop these features and enhance the moods of the swiftly moving scenes.

The cast is headed by veteran performers, well known to Jacksonville audiences.

Macbeth is played by Dave Brück; Banquo, Robert Kunkel; Lady Macbeth, Donna Postlewaite; Duncan, King of Scotland, Jean Thornton; Malcolm, his son, Helen Sellers; Donalbain, his son, Beverly Brown; Fleance, son of Banquo, Joan Harber; Macduff, Tom Olsen; Lennox, Edward Ives; Ross, James Mullen; Angus, John Baumgartner.
